Overview

Chris specialises in our core areas of practice, particularly personal injury, clinical negligence, counter-fraud and industrial disease. He is committed to providing a service of the highest calibre. He is extremely approachable, hard-working and responsive to the needs of his clients.

His experience can often bring an additional dimension to cases that need to be fought at trial.

Chris has extensive trial advocacy experience. He has earned a reputation as a formidable cross-examiner, having honed his skills at the Criminal Bar, conducting cases involving allegations of murder, sexual offences, child abuse, high-value fraud and fatal motoring offence.

His forensic skills enable him to identify quickly the critical legal and evidential issues in highly complex cases. His advice is always straightforward, pragmatic and clearly reasoned. He earns praise from clients for his tactical awareness.

Away from the Bar, Chris is a long-suffering Notts County FC supporter, he is a licensed radio amateur, and enjoys boxing, running, sailing and reading. He is also a skilful conjurer.

Personal Injury

Chris acts for both claimants and defendants in a wide range of personal injury cases. He is currently instructed in cases in the High Court and County Court involving serious injury valued at more than £1M, necessitating expert evidence in multiple disciplines.

He is noted for his ability to marshal large volumes of evidence and to communicate on an informed level with expert witnesses in highly specialised areas. He has an impressive track record in Court. He is also an exceptionally effective negotiator. He is regularly instructed for Joint Settlement Meetings in high value cases, to include when a silk is instructed by the other side.

Chris' experience covers both trials and interim hearings, including substantial experience of costs budgeting. He is instructed in cases involving head injuries, traumatic amputations, psychiatric injury, somatoform disorders, fibromyalgia, chronic pain syndromes and complex regional pain syndromes. He is frequently instructed to draft high-value detailed schedules and counter schedules of loss.

Counter Fraud

Chris' cross-examination skills, developed at the Criminal Bar, are invaluable to his clients when allegations of fraud, fundamental dishonesty or suspicions of malingering are raised.

He is an excellent trial advocate and a tenacious cross-examiner with a calm, incisive and forensic approach, which is likely to disarm even the most evasive of witnesses.

Clinical Negligence

Chris has a wide range of experience in this area. He has represented families at inquests in circumstances where clinical negligence proceedings are likely to follow. He also has experience of advising both claimants and defendants where complex issues of breach of duty and causation are raised.

Chris has worked on cases involving brain injuries, surgical error, cosmetic surgery, emergency events, and diagnostic failures. He advises on issues of capacity and consent, as well as marshalling complex calculations on assessment of damages involving extensive care and therapy regimes, and associated educational, vocational and accommodation issues. He is noted for his ability to grasp the detail of expert evidence in highly specialist fields and to deploy that knowledge to the advantage of his clients.

Criminal Regulatory

Chris has prosecuted, defended and mitigated on behalf of those charged with breach of waste disposal licenses, health and safety (including fatal injury cases), duty evasion and environmental offences.

He has prosecuted and defended at all levels (Court of Appeal, Crown Court and Magistrates' Court) those charged with offences prosecuted by various Local Authorities and Trading Standards Departments pursuant to their statutory enforcement duties, including benefit fraud and consumer protection offences and in particular offences contrary to the Consumer Protection from Unfair Trading Regulations 2008. He also has considerable experience of conducting 'confiscation' proceedings pursuant to the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002, which frequently arise after at the conclusion of such cases.

Disease

Cases of industrial disease form a significant part of Chris' practice. He is frequently instructed in claims for asbestosis and mesothelioma, noise-induced hearing loss, dermatitis, silicosis and hand-arm vibration syndrome.

He advises regularly on evidential and causation difficulties which often arise in such cases, including issues of life expectancy, limitation and assessing breach of duty based on the prevailing state of scientific knowledge.
